RE: CPCS v. Chief Justice of the Trial Court
SJC-12926

Dear Clerk Kenneally:

This letter is being submitted pursuant to Mass. R. App. P. 22(c). At oral argument, I mentioned that we were experiencing delay in a case in Worcester County. That case is Commonwealth v. Yang, 1385CR01137. The attorney informs me that he filed his emergency motion on Thursday, March 26, 2020, and on Monday, March 30, 2020, the clerk informed him they were trying to set up a video hearing for some time between April 6 and April 10.

In contrast to statements by General Counsel for the Trial Court during oral argument, ¹ Yang is emblematic of our experiences, which demonstrate repeated instances of hearing delays. The attached chart provides dozens of examples of delays extending up to two weeks.

¹ Attorney Sullivan: "What the chief justices of both the district and the superior court have told me is that these motions are being promptly heard. There hasn't been a wait for someone to be heard. The judges understand that this is [an] emergency and these are emergency motions. So they have been hearing them. I don't think it's accurate that there's been delay as far as I know in the hearing of any of these motions." Oral Argument, 1:42:00.

We also want to bring this Court's attention to another obstacle to relief for medically vulnerable prisoners, specifically, obtaining medical records from some of the carceral facilities. An attorney reports that when he sought medical records in Plymouth County, they provided excellent assistance by having the client sign a release form and sending the records within a day. Bristol County House of Correction, on the other hand, said they had to process the release and then they would contact him with the cost via fax (and only via fax). After that, he would have to mail in the check before they would send the medical records. Even though the attorney informed Bristol of the upcoming hearing date, they refused to even expedite getting him the cost of the records.

Finally, we bring this Court's attention to new information since the Department of Correction filed its April 1, 2020 post-argument letter. According to WBUR, there are now 19 prisoners, three DOC staff, and one medical provider who tested positive for COVID-19 at the Mass. Treatment Center in Bridgewater; one prisoner and two staffers at MCI-Shirley who tested positive, and one staffer at Souza-Baranowski Correctional Center who tested positive.² Petitioners have also been informed that, after working a shift at a Massachusetts house of correction on March 24, a nurse was sent home and has now tested positive for COVID-19.

Sincerely,

/s/ Rebecca Jacobstein
