Opinion

ORDER

CRABB, J.

*1 A hearing was held by telephone in this case on December 31, 2002, before United States District Judge Barbara B. Crabb. Plaintiffs appeared by Edward Garvey and Pamela McGillivray. Defendants were represented by James McCambridge, Assistant Attorney General for the State of Wisconsin.

The hearing was held to determine whether it was necessary to schedule an evidentiary hearing on plaintiffs' motion to enforce the court's order of June 21, 2002. Mr. Garvey advised the court that he and Mr. McCambridge had reached an agreement that the next step in this matter should be the appointment of an independent expert to evaluate the three inmates remaining at Boscobel to determine whether they could be moved to other prisons. Counsel are to draft a proposed order and submit it to the court for signature promptly.

With the signing of the court order, there appears to be nothing for the court to do at the present time. If plaintiffs have other concerns about the implementation of the June 21, 2002, order they will bring those concerns to the court later.
