Eastern State Penitentiary 1829-1971

Charles Dickens visited Philadelphia's Eastern State Penitentiary in 1842 and he later wrote: "The System is rigid, strict and hopeless ... and I believe it to be cruel and wrong....I hold this slow and daily tampering with the mysteries of the brain to be immeasurably worse than any torture of the body." The prison remained open for 129 years after Dickens condemned it as being barbaric, and some of its inhumane practices continue to be used in prisons nationwide.

All books are soft cover except Prison Madness

The Habeas Citebook: Ineffective Assistance of Counsel is the first in a series of books by Prison Legal News Publishing designed to help pro-se prisoner litigants identify and raise viable claims for potential habeas corpus relief. This book is an invaluable resource that identifies hundreds of cases where the federal courts have granted habeas relief to prisoners whose attorneys provided ineffective assistance of counsel.

It will save litigants
thousands of hours of research and it focuses on the WINNING cases criminal defendants need to successfully challenge their convictions.

Well organized into 52 concise chapters, this easy to use book puts the law at the reader's fingertips. The Appendix includes pleadings and forms from successful habeas corpus cases that demonstrate formatting and show how to frame a winning argument that will persuade a court to grant habeas relief. The Habeas Citebook explains the procedural and substantive complexities of federal habeas corpus litigation with the goal of identifying and litigating claims involving ineffective assistance of counsel.

Brandon Sample is a successful jailhouse lawyer litigant incarcerated in the Bureau of Prisons. He is a Prison Legal News contributing writer and a member of the National Lawyer's Guild. Editor Susan Schwartzkopf has a master's degree in education and is the director and editor in chief of Prison Legal News Publishing.

The Habeas Citebook is a nifty and concise self-help guide for prisoners seeking habeas relief based on claims of ineffective assistance of counsel. Navigating the complex and treacherous terrain of habeas law is never easy; but claiming that your lawyer screwed up is even more difficult — especially from the confines of an ill-equipped prison law library. “Brandon Sample has provided an amazing and much-needed tool for prisoners who are forced to seek relief on their own. The book is thorough; but simple and readable. It starts with a wonderfully well-organized listing of hundreds of different types of ineffective assistance of counsel, set forth in the form of citations to court rulings — a novel approach that not only acts as a springboard for further research but also saves the prisoner countless hours of preliminary research.”

Copies of this very usable and useful guide should be available in every prison library—to help incarcerated people give positive direction to their energies while making constructive use of their time. It is a well-established fact that people who have taken college courses in prison have a dramatically reduced rate of recidivism.”

—BELL GALE CHEVIGNY, PEN Prison Writing Program, Editor Doing Time: 25 Years of Prison Writing.

HIGH SCHOOL • VOCATIONAL • PARALEGAL • UNDERGRADUATE • GRADUATE COURSES

THE GREATLY anticipated and newly updated third edition of the Prisoner's Guerrilla Handbook to Correspondence Programs in the United States and Canada has finally arrived! Author Jon Marc Taylor's brand new version is the latest in this unique and highly successful guidebook for the prisoner-student. This invaluable tool and how-to handbook provides the reader with step-by-step instructions to find the appropriate educational program for high school, vocational, paralegal, undergraduate, and graduate courses offered in the U.S. and Canada today.

Invaluable re-entry tool

It presents more than 160 program outlines and offers an easy-to-use format for the student to determine which program best suits their needs. It is ideal for the incarcerated student who does not have Internet access or the ability to attend education classes in person. This resource is indispensable for the individual and beneficial for use in all prison libraries and education departments.

The Prisoner's Guerrilla Handbook is the only book on the market for the non-traditional prisoner-student. It includes detailed listings of the quality, cost, and course offerings for all correspondence programs available to prisoners. In a time when so many academic opportunities in prisons have been eliminated, this book is an invaluable re-entry tool for prisoners who seek to further their education while incarcerated and to help them prepare for life and work following their release.

Jon Marc Taylor has more than 25 years experience as an incarcerated student, advocate for prisoner education, and author. He has successfully earned a bachelor's degree, a master's degree, and a doctorate via correspondence courses while incarcerated. Editor Susan Schwartzkopf has a master's degree in education and 12 years experience teaching immigrants English language skills.

Nationwide PLN Survey Examines Prison Phone Contracts, Kickbacks

by John E. Dannenberg

An exhaustive analysis of prison phone contracts nationwide has revealed that with only limited exceptions, telephone service providers offer lucrative kickbacks (politely termed "commissions") to state contracting agencies – amounting on average to 42% of gross revenues from prisoners' phone calls – in order to obtain exclusive, monopolistic contracts for prison phone services.

These contracts are priced not only to unjustly enrich the telephone companies by charging much higher rates than those paid by the general public, but are further inflated to cover the commission payments, which suck over $152 million per year out of the pockets of prisoners' families – who are the overwhelming recipients of prison phone calls. Averaging a 42% kickback nationwide, this indicates that the phone market in state prison systems is worth more than an estimated $362 million annually in gross revenue.

In a research task never before accomplished, Prison Legal News, using public records laws, secured prison phone contract information from all 50 states (compiled in 2008-2009 and representing data from 2007-2008). The initial survey was conducted by PLN contributing writer Mike Rigby, with follow-up research by PLN associate editor Alex Friedmann.

The phone contracts were reviewed to determine the service provider; the kickback percentage; the annual dollar amount of the kickbacks; and the rates charged for local calls, intrastate calls (within a state based on calls from one Local Access and Transport Area to another, known as interLATA), and interstate calls (long distance between states). To simplify this survey, only collect call and daytime rates were analyzed.

Around 30 states allow discounted debit and/or prepaid collect calls, which provide lower prison phone rates (much lower in some cases). However, since other states don't offer such options and not all prisoners or their families have access to debit or prepaid accounts, only collect calls – which are available in all prison systems except Iowa's – were compared. Also, while telephone companies sometimes provide reduced rates for evening and nighttime calls, many prisoners don't have the luxury of scheduling phone calls during those time periods.

Lastly, it should be noted that more recent phone rates may now be in effect due to new contract awards or renewals, and while data was obtained from all 50 states, it was not complete for each category. See the chart accompanying this article for a breakdown of the data obtained.

PLN has previously reported on the egregious nature of exorbitant prison phone rates, notably in our January 2007 cover story, "Ex-Communication: Competition and Collusion in the U.S. Prison Telephone Industry," by University of Michigan professor Steven Jackson.

How Are Phone Rates Regulated?

Domestic phone calls are generally divided into three categories: local, intrastate and interstate. The rates charged for these calls depend on several factors and are regulated by different authorities. Local calls are usually flat-rate within a small area around the call's originating location; e.g., within the same city.

Local and intrastate calls are often regulated by state public utility or service commissions, which set rate caps. These caps are negotiated to allow phone companies to recover capital costs in a reasonable time frame while also satisfying requirements levied by the state. The latter include subsidizing low-income phone users, providing emergency communications for state agencies, and providing required phone coverage (such as emergency-reporting phone booths along major highways). Obviously, some of these state-mandated requirements are not in and of themselves profitable, so negotiation of rate structures includes recouping these otherwise nonrecoverable costs.

At the interstate level, phone com-
