12/20/2012	64	RESPONSE re 63 Proposed Order, 62 Notice, re: 2 First MOTION for Preliminary Injunction by James Briggs. (Mannix, Mary) Modified on 1/3/2013 to link to motion (Grady, B.). (Entered: 12/20/2012)
12/21/2012	65	ORDER rescheduling status conference / hearing for 1/23/2013 in Courtroom 2, 450 Main Street, Hartford, Ct to discuss the nature of injunctive relief and the proposed class. This Court held that the FSA created private enforceable rights in its decision denying Defendant's motion to dismiss. Although the Court concurrently ruled on the Plaintiff's motion for preliminary injunction when it denied Defendant's motion to dismiss, the Court's decision on the motion for preliminary injunction was predicated on the prior ruling on the motion to dismiss. As Defendant's motion to dismiss sounds in standing or alternatively lack of jurisdiction, the Second Circuit has appellate jurisdiction to entertain an appeal on the Court's December 4, 2012 ruling on the motion to dismiss in which it held that Sections 2020 (e)(3) and (9) confer federal

		rights enforceable under Section 1983. See W.R. Huff Asset Management Co., LLC v. Deloitte & Touche LLP, 549 F.3d 100 (2d Cir. 2008) (reversing district court ruling denying motion to dismiss for lack of standing); J.S. ex rel. N.S. v. Attica Central Schools, 386 F.3d 107 (2d Cir. 2004) (affirming district court ruling denying motion to dismiss for lack of subject matter jurisdiction). In addition, the Second Circuit would also have appellate jurisdiction over both the rulings on the motion to dismiss and the motion for preliminary injunction despite the fact that the Court has yet to determine the exact parameters of injunctive relief under the collateral order doctrine much like questions of qualified immunity. In Cohen v. Beneficial Indus. Loan Corp., 337 U.S. 541, 69 S.Ct. 1221, 93 L.Ed. 1528 (1949), the Supreme Court recognized an exception to the final judgment rule, which has come to be known as the "collateral order doctrine." Id. at 54547, 69 S.Ct. 1221. "To qualify for the exception, an order must (1) conclusively determine the disputed question, (2) resolve an important issue completely separate from the merits of the action, and (3) be effectively unreviewable on appeal from a final judgment." U.S. v. Yousef, 475 F. App'x 809, 809 (2d Cir. 2012) (internal quotation marks and citations omitted). Here, the Court's rulings on both the motions to dismiss and preliminary injunction satisfy these criteria. Further the rationale supporting appellate jurisdiction over questions of immunity applies with equal force to the present situation. Much like an officer shielded by qualified immunity, the State should not be required to bear the burden of litigation where such a threshold issue is in contention. As Defendant's pleadings appear to suggest that he will likely seek to appeal the Court's decision, the Court reschedules the conference for 1/23/2013 after the appeals period has lapsed. Should the Defendant choose not to appeal, the parties should be prepared to attend the scheduled conference. If the Defendant chooses to appeal the decision, the Court will reschedule the conference after the resolution of such appeal. Signed by Judge Vanessa L. Bryant on 12/21/2012. 01/07/2013	69	ORDER denying 68 Motion for Reconsideration on order denying motion for class certification without prejudice to renewing pending resolution of interlocutory appeal. As the Court previously expressed in its prior 65 order, the question of injunctive relief is premature at this juncture in which the Defendant has appealed the Court's determination that the FSA confers enforceable rights under Section 1983. As this Court explained, the Court does not believe that the State should be required to bear the burden of litigation including a preliminary injunction where a threshold issue is in dispute. Moreover, the Plaintiffs' arguments as to whether the interlocutory appeal is premature are properly before the Second Circuit as this Court has no authority to dismiss the notice of appeal.
